1. Besides Soviet Army soldiers a small Soviet Air Force unit was stationed at the Fuerstennalbe (N 53/V 33) airfield in late December 1949. [REDACTED] 25X1X
- 25X1X [REDACTED] the air force soldiers were doing construction work at the field. A board fence was being erected around the landing field and work was being done on three hangars on the southern edge of the field. There were no aircraft. The high buildings around the field had obstacle lights which were never seen in operation.
2. The air force soldiers previously stationed at the field were transferred on 6 January 1950. Soldiers with black collar patches were loading white bales from five railroad cars standing on the loading ramp on trucks.

25X1A [REDACTED] Comment:

According to previous reports, no air force unit is stationed at the field. The airfield buildings are occupied by an army unit.
